Vacaville's Imagine That's School Enrichment Program

When COVID first hit, Vacaville's Imagine That was one of the first businesses to shut their doors. The day that schools said they were closing so did we. From March to August we struggled to keep our employees employed and did our best to use the time wisely by fixing things within the museum and working on new curriculum. Come July 2020 and things were looking very bad for the future of the museum.

That's when Alexandra (Alex) Christensen, our new director, suggested we open the museum up to a school program that would help the kids of essential workers who could not be at home to facilitate the distance learning our schools were facing.

Starting mid-August, we've welcomed around thirty kids daily into our facility to do their zoom calls with their teachers as well as their asynchronous work. Once all of that is complete, we offer science based lessons to keep the kids engaged and off the screens.

Due to very generous grants from Genentech, Rotary and other like-minded organizations, we've been able to keep the cost of the program very minimal and have four kids on full scholarship.

Speaker: Lauren Runow - our own Sergeant at Arms!
