Shyloh Stobie has partnered with an HR consulting firm. They will be opening the Atomic Saloon at the Venetian soon.

President Julie Todd paid her President's fines; her youngest son was in town for the long weekend finishing up the house hunt. She had a buck for the speakers.

Program

Christine Smith introduced Heather Harmon and Carmen Beales from the Nevada Museum of Art. Heather Harmon was recently hired by the Nevada Museum of Art to serve as Deputy Director for the Nevada Museum of Art, Las Vegas. After conducting a national search, the Museum selected Heather to help lead the effort to establish an art museum in Symphony Park.

As the first full-time, salaried employee in Southern Nevada, Heather will work with Museum staff and trustees to build community relations and research efforts, to fundraise, coordinate the architecture selection process, co-produce pop-up events, and more.

A native of Las Vegas going back several generations to 1910, Heather Harmon is a seasoned project manager who is well-connected in the international contemporary art world and speaks Spanish as a second language. She received her B.A. from the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, and M.A. in theory and criticism from the Art Center College of Design, Pasadena. From 2008 to 2013, she worked as director of Regen Projects in Los Angeles where she managed a stable of established artists, oversaw exhibitions, worked directly with clients, museum directors and curators worldwide, and was responsible for procuring sales. Most recently, she led advancement efforts for Artists Space in New York.

She officially began her new position with the Nevada Museum of Art on March 1.

The Reno location of the Nevada Museum of Art (NMA) has been open since 1931 as the Nevada Art Gallery by Dr. James E. Church, a Professor of German and Classics at the University of Nevada, Reno. Church was the first on record to summit 10,776-foot Mount Rose and build a snow survey station on the mountain, he was intricately connected to the area's natural resources and an early example of the Museum's interest in art and environment. In 1949, the Gallery obtained a facility and the foundation of a permanent collection at the bequest of Church's friend and co-founder, Charles F. Cutts. NMA is expanding to Las Vegas. Their mission statement is "Being a museum of ideas".

Starting with a series of town halls that will gather community feedback, Heather wants to know what the community wants from a museum. A museum will help strengthen Las Vegas and sustain our creative labor force. We have great institutions to teach art and art history but people must go outside of Vegas to get gainful employment in the field. The museum will be built in Symphony

Club Meeting

Green Valley
Meets at The
Wildhorse Golf Club
2100 West Warm
Springs Road
Henderson, NV 89014
Time: Thursday at 07:00 AM

Park near the Smith Center on property that was donated by the City of Las Vegas. A committee, made up of museum, artistic and community leaders, is conducting an architectural search and will have a decision by year's end. The search focused on finding the up-and-coming, most talented architects from around the world. There are 12 architects currently in the running. That will soon be narrowed to two who will then present their plans. Fundraising will commence after the architect is chosen and they will break ground when approximately 80% of the funds are raised. Ideally they will open in 2025.

Las Vegas is the largest city in the country with no accredited museum. The plan is to engage the community with outreach programs, educational programs and classes, and special exhibits. They want to foster community engagement with business by strengthening the creative labor force by growing from within, and thus creating jobs. The primary focus of the museum will be the 2 million residents here, but they will work to get world-class exhibitions and multiple layers of programming. Popular international cultural and educational travel trends promise to bring travelers from all over the world to Las Vegas to visit the museum. A museum store and restaurant will be on-site.

President Julie thanked Heather and Carmen for their presentation and presented them with a token of our thanks.

Adjournment

Greg Bruce's number was pulled and he drew a 5. The pot was at $90. Greg led the group in the Four-Way Test of the Things We Think, Say or Do.

President Julie adjourned the meeting by ringing the bell at 8:02 a.m.

Nigeria reaches crucial polio milestone

It's been three years since health officials last reported a case of polio caused by the wild poliovirus in Nigeria. The milestone, reached on 21 August, means that it's possible for the entire World Health Organization (WHO) African region to be certified wild poliovirus-free next year.

Nigeria's success is the result of several sustained efforts, including domestic and international financing, the commitment of thousands of health workers, and strategies to immunize children who previously couldn't be reached because of a lack of security in the country's northern states.

Rotary, its Global Polio Eradication Initiative partners, and the Nigerian government have strengthened immunization and disease detection systems, says Michael K. McGovern, chair of Rotary's International PolioPlus Committee. He adds: "We are now reaching more children than ever in some of the hardest-to-reach places in Nigeria."
