Trivia

By Eric Kittleberger

On this date, August 12, 1939, an iconic American film made it's premier? What movie? The Wizard of Oz.

In what city did it make it's premier? Nobody is going to get this – Oconomowoc, Wisconsin. While it made it's premier on August 12, what was the official release date? August 25. Why the difference? Don't know.

What's the name of the original book that the movie was based on? "The WONDERFUL Wizard of Oz", by L Frank Baum.

In what year was "The Wonderful Wizard of Oz" published? 1900.

Who was the director? Victor Fleming

In what year did the film make it's television premier? 1956, which was weird, because although television could broadcasting in color at the time, there were very few color television sets.

Toto was what breed of dog? Cairn Terrier.

Many people know this, but Ray Bolger, who played the Scarecrow, was originally cast to play what character? The Tin Man. The Scarecrow was originally cast to be played by Buddy Ebsen (of Beverly Hillbilly's fame), but Ray Bolger convinced Buddy Ebsen to switch roles with him. Then, in a horrible twist of fate, silver paint used for his costuming gave him a severe allergic reaction and Buddy Ebsen went from playing the Scarecrow to not being in the movie at all.

Margaret Hamilton eventually was cast to play the witch. However, there was another actress that had originally been cast to play that role, who was it? Gale Sondergaard. Don't know who Gale Sondergaard was? Well, she has the honor of being the very first recipient of the Oscar for best supporting actress in 1936. Can anybody tell me what movie she was in that garnered her that award? Anthony Adverse.

Now, the real trivia – who can name the lead actress in Anthony Adverse? None other than Olivia De Havilland, who went on to star as Melanie Hamilton in Gone with the Wind and who lived to the ripe old age of 104, and only passed away last year.

A woman is in labor at the hospital. She thinks she's ready to give birth any second now. She's in the birthing room with the doctor and starts yelling "Shouldn't, Wouldn't, Couldn't, Didn't, Can't, Won't, Aren't". The doctor tells her to calm down, those are just contractions.

Fish Bowl

$11 in the Fish Bowl was won by Roger Driver.

Brag Bucks

Charlene Gearing bragged about the work of various members and families in designing, creating and participating in the Boulder County Fair Parade float including; idea generation; signage made and donated; boots provided; bandanas provided/donated; worknight dinner provided; fresh garden flowers picked and donated; helium balloons donated; the trailer provided and the take down afterwards.

Dave Chrisman bragged about Charlene and Larry Gearing hitting the ground running when they joined this club two years ago and how they have continued to be involved.
