

President Zatuilla Nara's Weekly Bulletin

November 22, 2021

The holiday season always reminds me of the times that my parents and family gathered for sumptuous meals at Dr. and Mrs. Chapman's house. Through the '70's and '80's, the Chapman's would invite and welcome Indonesian UW-Madison students to their home. These graduate students were from various regions of Indonesia with different cultural backgrounds, religious beliefs, and professional fields.

Ok, I forgot specific details of the social gatherings and Dr. Chapman's professional background. These memorable moments perfectly illustrates a Maya Angelou quote, "I've learned that people will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel." The Chapmans made living in Wisconsin less lonely and provided several Indonesian families with a community and a sense of belonging.
