The Spoke

Highlights from September 17, 2020 Club Meeting

By David Anders on Friday, September 18, 2020

Opening of the Meeting:

Rick Walker opened the meeting with the Pledge, followed by John Senger with the Prayer and Kirk Jocham with the Four Way Test.

Matt Pfeiffer conducted Happy Bucks and Derek Rogers sold 50/50 tickets. Grant Ford's ticket was pulled but he did not pull the Queen of Spades.

Approximately 40 Rotarians were present, in person, for this week's meeting. This does not include those attending via Zoom.

Announcements:

- We have a new sound system at Costa's Grill which can be heard outside as well as the restrooms, so you do not miss any important announcements. Plans are in the works to install a large screen tv in the south section of the restaurant so that we can accommodate our entire club, albeit with some Rotarians sitting in the north section and others in the south section.
- Kirk announced that he plans to donate the club's share of the $1,000 Fifty-Fifty Raffle, to the Soup Kitchen along with all happy bucks collected during the month of September.
- Stacey Wixson announced that our Fall Fundraiser will be a substantial (hopefully $5,000 or more in the pot) 50/50 community raffle with funds collected from sponsors. Ticket sales will be donated to five local charities, chosen by our members. It is planned that we will begin selling raffle tickets from local establishments starting October 19th and hold the raffle on Thursday, October 29th at our club meeting. Stacey is asking for suggestions for a name for this event, so if you have any creative ideas for this Fall Fundraiser send them to Stacey. We want to begin marketing the event, as soon as possible. Stacey is seeking help in soliciting sponsors for this event.
- Brian Lott advised the club that we provided over 1,000 cases of food and beverages to 8 Hancock County organizations including the Kenneth Butler, Memorial Soup Kitchen, Hancock County Food Pantry, Hancock County Meals on Wheels, Angel Connection and pantries at Brandywine Church, Shirley-Wilkinson United Methodist Church and Vineyard Community Church. In addition, the event

Wayne Addison sponsored today's speaker, Austin Lee, son of Chris Lee. Austin is Vice President of Fraud and Senior Data Scientist for Bank of America. Austin is a graduate of Indiana University. Austin returned home to Greenfield from New York City, since he has been able to work from home during the Covid19 Pandemic. He was motivated to move back home, because the pizza is better in Greenfield than New York City. Austin shared with the club, his knowledge and experience in combating Synthetic Identity Fraud where bad actors or rings of bad actors either create an identity by either manipulating data through theft of someone's social security or by manufacturing a fictitious social security number. They will create a bogus identity and start applying for credit cards. Often, they will attach their false identity to another person's credit card account as an authorized user. This automatically gets their record into all the credit bureaus and then they can easily apply for multiple separate credit cards. Austin estimates that Synthetic Identity Fraud easily totaled over $6 billion in 2019. It is not uncommon for these crooks to steal a child's or elderly person's social security number, since they are not often monitored. In the case of young children, the fraud is not detected until later in life.

Austin has the distinction of working with the FBI, while working at Citi Bank, in uncovering Macy's credit card fraud scheme, a few years back. Austin has also been involved in Bank of America's new software program which graphs data linking multiple individuals to fraudulent activities. This software has also been helpful in uncovering money flowing from human trafficking rings. This software recently helped uncover a child trafficking ring and has, already, saved Bank of America over $80 million.

Austin's advice to the members was to frequently monitor your financial accounts and establish alerts with your financial institutions. Request a credit report, at least annually. You can get a free report at annualcreditreport.com.

volunteers setup camp at the Greenfield Walmart parking lot on Saturday to conduct the annual Fill a Truck, Fill a Pantry event to collect food for the many food pantries throughout the county. A blood drive was also being conducted at the same time. Organizers say both were a great success. We once again collected over 1,000 cases of food and distributed it to eight pantries in the county, said Chief Brian Lott of the Greenfield Fire Territory, who directed this year's food drive. He credited volunteers from the Greenfield Rotary, Sertoma and Greenfield-Central High School for coming out to run the five-hour event. Students from Interact, the Rotary's student club, were also there, sorting food into boxes and loading them into a semi-trailer. We had a couple of volunteers from Trinity Park United Methodist Church, and Keihin employees were also amazing help with forklifts and staff to unload and load trucks and trailers, said Lott, who credited Walmart for providing use of the parking lot. Carl Denny, the former Hancock Hope House director who first created the annual food collection, also contributed. He sent over a semi load of food (from his 40,000 Pounds of Giving event) that greatly contributed to the numbers of cases of food we got, said Lott. The amount donated by the community was actually down this year, said Lott, which is to be expected due to unemployment. Next year we will probably work closer with businesses and corporations to participate in the program, he said. I want to thank those who donated and helped with this year's event. It takes several months of planning and volunteers to make the program work. The assistance is very much appreciated, said Lott. The food collected was sent to a number of places throughout Hancock County, including the Kenneth Butler Memorial Soup Kitchen, Hancock County Food Pantry, Hancock County Meals onWheels, Angel Connection and pantries at Brandywine Church, Shirley-Wilkinson United Methodist Church and Vineyard Community Church. The soup kitchen's director, Jill Ebbert, who was on hand at the collection Saturday, was grateful for the community's outpouring of support.

I'm overwhelmed at the blessings once more, she said, while taking in some shade under a popup tent. Donations are a little bit lighter this year, but there's still a whole lot of food here. I'm pretty sure when I go back I'll have a full dining room, she said. Rotarian Monica Price was proud to see the community turn out for the dual-purpose event. I think it's significant to see two causes come together, with the food drive and the blood drive, to provide two things that are essential to life. The support we've seen is definitely overwhelming, she said. The blood drive conducted through Versiti was again in honor of Riley Settergren, an Eastern Hancock High School student who was killed in a crash in July 2017. His dad, Jay Settergren, was on hand Saturday thanking donors for their support as they left Versiti's mobile blood center. The donations haven't stopped, said Settergren, as the event was winding to a close. About 60% had made an online appointment, and the rest just stopped by, he said. The great turnout was no surprise to Settergren, whose family has seen an outpouring of support. I think in general our community, Hancock County, has always had the reputation for taking care of their neighbors, ♦ he said. He was humbled that people would come out to give blood in honor of his son, answering a call for blood shortages throughout the country.
