Program Update - July 14th Candace Balzano & Pamela Meekma Susie's Place Child Advocacy Center

Fellow Rotarian Candace Balzano, Director of Prevention Education at Susie's Place, and her colleague Pamela Meekma, joined our club last week to provide an update on this organization, which has been one of our primary beneficiaries of support over the last decade. Both ladies are part of Susie's Place's sexual abuse prevention service, and have delivered these programs to schools and other organizations in Hendricks County. They are the primary provider of abuse programs for the Plainfield Community Schools elementary and middle schools. Susie's Place also provides these services to other schools and organizations throughout its 35 county constituency, with interview centers located in Avon, Bloomington, and Terre Haute.

Susie's Place was founded in 2009 with a single facility in Avon in order to provide child forensic interviewing capabilities in a non-threatening environment. Under the leadership of Emily Perry (one of Diane Burks' daughters), the organization has grown far beyond Hendricks County, having established centers in Bloomington in 2011 and in Terre Haute in 2017. Since 2009, it has served more than 11,000 children. In 2020 alone it conducted 1,270 interviews. Susie's Place also offers a therapy dog program, child and family advocacy, forensic medical services, and trauma-focused cognitive behavioral therapy.
