Rotarians Beautify the Westerville South Peace Garden

Thanks to the Rotarians who helped stain the Peace Garden Trellis last Friday. A lot of things aligned to make the Rotary Peace Garden project what it is. When, then President-Elect, Mark Morgan was looking for a project to fund using the District Grant process, it was suggested by Assistant City Manager, Julie Colley, that a possible project may exist with Westerville City Schools. This is also the general time when the idea of Peace was really gaining traction with Rotary International and Peace Building Clubs were coming into existence. It also just so happened around this time that Westerville South High School was due for a renovation & expansion and the Westerville Education Foundation was hosting focus groups between student and community leaders to identify what the students wanted most to facilitate a positive learning environment. Upon listening to the students, one of the things they wanted most was a safe space in the schools. Serendipity! The idea for a Rotary Peace Garden came into being and with the collaboration of John Kellog, Jeff LaRose and Scott Dorne with WCS, and Bob Gibson from Triad Architects our contributions were accepted. The first project in Mark's year was the waterfall graphic that you can see on the windows in the background of these pictures. My year's grant was the trellis we stained last Friday. The subsequent two years(?) will include the pavers to finish the space and branding it the Rotary Peace Garden.

It is our hope that this multi-year, grant funded project fulfills on the idea of a safe space and communicates to South's students that there is a community ready to support their need for Peace. Thank you to Mark, Bob and John for their willingness to join projects over their Presidential years to see this project through. And thank you to all of the Sunrise Members who contribute to the RI and WSR Foundations: your donations make projects like this possible."
