He previously reported on the 2020 campaign after working as national correspondent for USA TODAY based in Boston. From 2012 to 2019, Garrison covered city hall and local and state politics for The Tennessean in Nashville, Tenn. after working for the Nashville City Paper from 2009 to 2012. He also covered K-12 public education in Nashville for a period.

At The Tennessean, Garrison was part of a team of reporters that earned second place by the National Headliner Awards in 2019 for best political reporting for coverage of former Nashville Mayor Megan Barry's sex scandal and resignation. The Washington Post's "The Fix" politics blog named Garrison one of Tennessee's best political reporters in 2013. UPDATE ON ROTARY MEETINGS

We are excited to announce that Nashville Rotary will begin a hybrid meeting format on Monday, May 3. The hybrid meeting format will allow for an opportunity to attend in person at the Wildhorse Saloon or virtually through a Zoom livestream. Initially, we will allow up to 100 people to attend in person. Should it become unsafe to continue the in-person option, we will revert to a virtual-only meeting format.

The in-person meeting RSVP will open each Monday at 3 p.m. and end by Thursday at 9 a.m. that week. The RSVP for Monday, May 3 will open on Monday, April 26 at 3 p.m. You will receive an email with a link to the RSVP. If space allows, we will have an opportunity for members to bring prospective members to the in-person meeting.

No RSVP is necessary to attend the virtual meeting.
