Speaker for Monday August 12, 2019 - Judge Raul Zambrano

Born in Panama, Circuit Judge Raul A. Zambrano traveled to Dubuque, Iowa, as a teenager to receive an education in the United States. After high school, he went to Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University in Daytona Beach where he earned a bachelor's degree in Aeronautical Science and two master's degrees in Aeronautical Science and Business Administration. He then decided to go to law school, earning his juris doctor from Stetson University College of Law near St. Petersburg.

After law school, Judge Zambrano began working for the Office of the State Attorney in the Seventh Judicial Circuit which includes Flagler, Putnam, St. Johns and Volusia counties. Over the years, he prosecuted a variety of cases and spent his last 10 years supervising the State Attorney's office in DeLand.

In 2005, Governor Bush appointed him as a circuit judge. Judge Zambrano currently presides over a criminal division in Daytona Beach and serves as the chief judge for the seventh circuit.

Judge Zambrano has previously sat on a children and families committee of the Florida Supreme Court and has served as president of the local Inns of Court chapter a mentoring group for judges and attorneys.

Judge Zambrano is married and has four children. In his free time, he's a pilot, musician and chef. He is also active with his church.

First Names or Nicknames

From the earliest days of Rotary, members have referred to each other on a first-name basis. Since personal acquaintanceship and friendship are the cornerstones of Rotary, it was natural that clubs adopted the practice of setting aside formal titles in conversations among members.

Individuals who normally would be addressed as Doctor, Professor, Mister, the Honorable or Sir are regularly called Joe, Bill, Mary, Karen or Charley by other Rotarians. The characteristic Rotary club name badge fosters the first-name custom.

In a few areas, such as Europe, club members use a more formal style in addressing fellow members. In other parts of the world, mainly in Asian countries, the practice is to assign each new Rotarian a humorous nickname which relates to some personal characteristic or which is descriptive of the member's business or profession. A member nicknamed ♦Oxygen♦ is the manufacturer of chemical gas products. ♦Trees♦ is the nickname for the Rotarian in the lumber business, ♦Building♦ is the contractor, ♦Paper♦ is the stationery or office supply retailer. Other members might carry nicknames like ♦Muscles, ♦Foghorn♦ or ♦Smiles♦ as commentaries on their physical features. The nicknames are frequently a source of good-natured fun and fellowship. But whether a Rotarian is addressed by a given first name or a nickname, the spirit of personal friendship is the initial step that opens doors to all other opportunities for service.
