I am a retired Licensed Clinical Social Worker. I worked for the state of California, assessing children suspected of developmental disabilities, writing behavioral plans, and facilitating many parenting classes for parents and caregivers of Special Needs children for 28 years before retiring and moving to Florida. In 2011, I started a nonprofit organization to help families with Special Needs family members. SNAP was designed to provide advocacy, support, and resources to improve the lives of the individuals we serve and educate the community on the unique abilities of Special Needs individuals.
