

This Week's Speaker: Thomas Marshall

Thomas Marshall, Director of Human Resources

Thomas Marshall joined Onduline North America in 2016 after he was recruited away from a Brazilian based computer company where he served as an HR Manager for their North America Operations. In this role, he worked closely with different business units and their staff to help guide and develop their internal talent.

A native of the Richmond, Thomas moved to Jacksonville, FL in 1996 to work for a railroad company to cut his teeth in HR. while simultaneously going to college pursuing a degree in Human Resources. In 2001 Thomas moved back to Virginia to be with family and ultimately joined the military and became a Combat Search & Rescue Swimmer in the Navy. After his stint in the military, Thomas wanted to get back to his passion with HR and joined the marketplace again. Thomas is a Senior Certified Professional of the Society for Human Resource Management and holds a bachelor's degree in business administration, specializing in human resources management, from Grantham University.

The origin of the ONDURA product line began with the development of cellulose-bitumen based roofing materials in France in 1944. The first American production plant was built in Fredericksburg, Virginia, in 1976, and the first corrugated asphalt sheet rolled off that production line on January 14, 1977. The American company has gone through transitions in ownership and corporate identity while continuing to operate at the same Fredericksburg location. Improvements in materials used in the corrugated asphalt sheets and the production process led to wider adoption of ONDURA in roofing applications in North America.

WHAT IS THE PURPLE PINKY FINGER CAMPAIGN? OR WHY WEAR PURPLE!

When a child five years old or younger is vaccinated, they must dip their little finger into purple ink. This indicates the child has been vaccinated against polio. This is a way for the volunteers to know which children have been vaccinated. Usually in one day, more than one million children can be vaccinated against polio.

So, each Purple Pinkie brings us closer to making Polio history. By supporting the Purple Pinkie campaign, we can help make the pain and life-limiting effect of polio a thing of the past.

The club presented a check for $500 to Operation Warm to purchase new winter coats for Stafford County students. This donation was matched to double the value of our gift.

Cherice giving dictionaries to third graders at Stafford Elementary. We are on track to finish dictionary distribution before the end of October.
