This Week at Rotary

I am a trained life coach with over 20 years' experience advising clients as an attorney and investment advisor. I have a JD/MBA from a top 20 law school and practiced law for 7 years at large and medium-sized law firms before transitioning to banking and then starting my own investment advisory firm.

My greatest reward is helping others succeed both professionally and personally. I have lived a professional life filled with starts, stops and transitions. Resilience and re-prioritization of my goals were necessary to grow and evolve. Through trial and error, I have found my true purpose to be to help others.

There is nothing like the satisfaction of playing a part in another's journey to living their best life.

Breakfast from Milner's!

President Brent has secured Milner's for our breakfast vendor during the summer. Now that is a breakfast worth showing up for!

The image is stock photography, FYI. You'll need to show up to see just how good Milner's really is.

Golf Funny For The Day

Sometimes, golf teaches you patience, humility... and the importance of working plumbing.

During last week's outing, the clubhouse restrooms were mysteriously out of order, sending the volunteers and brave golfers alike on a quest for alternative facilities. Word spread that there was a "bathroom setup" at the Tenth Tee — a phrase that brought both hope and mild panic.

When we arrived, sure enough, there they were: a neat wooden rack holding what looked unmistakably like a row of hospital-style urinals. Each container was filled with sand — perhaps to absorb odor? Perhaps as some sort of cover system? We figured it must be a makeshift wilderness toilet operation. So, naturally, a few of us bravely made use of the "facilities," doing our business and then respectfully covering it with sand like polite golfing cats.

Only later — and this is the part where our pride takes a bogey — did we learn the truth: these were not emergency urinals.

They were sand bottles. For fixing divots.

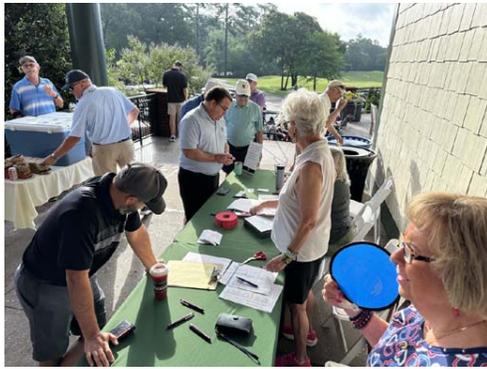

So if you're wondering why the fairway smells a little funny, well... now you know. And to whoever has to handle the divot bottles next — we apologize. Sincerely.

Moral of the story? Always ask before you pee. And maybe bring your own porta-potty next time.
