TEXAS-STYLE BEEF RIBS

Peppery • Smoky • Fall-apart tender

Serves 4–6 | Smoker: 250°F | Cook: 6–9 hours + resting

INGREDIENTS

- ★ 1 rack beef plate short ribs (3 bones, 5–6 lb)
- ★ 2 tbsp yellow mustard
- ★ 1 tbsp kosher salt
- ★ 2 tbsp coarse black pepper
- ★ 2 tsp garlic powder
- ★ 1 tsp smoked paprika (optional)
- ★ ½ cup beef broth, for spritzing

DIRECTIONS

- 1 Prep: Trim hard fat and silver skin from the top; leave the membrane underneath. Pat dry.
- 2 Season: Coat with mustard. Mix salt, pepper, garlic powder and paprika; rub all over.
- 3 Smoke: Heat smoker to 250°F with oak or pecan. Cook bone-side down for 3 hours.
- 4 Finish: Lightly spritz dry spots with broth each hour. Smoke until a probe slides in easily, usually 200–205°F internally and 6–9 hours total. If bark gets too dark, wrap in butcher paper.
- 5 Rest: Loosely tent for 45–60 minutes, then slice between the bones.

Texas tip: Let the beef and pepper shine—serve barbecue sauce on the side.

† A LITTLE CONFESSION COACHING †

- 1 A newly ordained priest, nervous about hearing confessions, asks an older priest to observe and offer some tips.
- 2 After listening, the older priest suggests folding his arms, rubbing his chin, and saying, "I see," "I understand," or "Yes, my child. Go on."
- 3 The young priest tries it and later reports that his flock is opening up much more.

"You've done well," says the older priest. "Isn't that better than slapping your knee and yelling..."

"NO WAY! WHAT HAPPENED NEXT?"

CLYDE REID

1944-1945 • Educator

RI Theme: None

Contributed by
Kathy Andes

Clyde Carson Reid was born in Reedley, California, on December 24, 1899 to Carson Reid and Elgie Packard Reid. His father was a rancher and businessman who at one time owned and operated interests in the Dinuba Hotel, a farm implement store and an ice making plant. Clyde attended elementary and high schools in Reedley and then entered The University of Redlands as a college freshman in 1917. He graduated from The University of Redlands in 1921 after having spent his junior year at the University of California in Berkley before returning to Redlands for his senior year. He then spent the next year taking graduate work at Harvard University in Boston, Massachusetts but was forced to leave after being stricken with an illness that disabled him for about two years.

In either 1925 or 1926, Clyde commenced a teaching career teaching history and government at Reedley High School and Junior College. In July 1927 he married Esther Howe, a local elementary school teacher, with whom he had three children: Norman S. Reid, born June 9, 1928; Randall C. Reid, born October 4, 1931; and Carol E. Reid, born December 28, 1933. In 1930, Clyde left Reedley and took a teaching position in Paso Robles, California at the local high school. In 1932 he moved the family to Ventura, California where he taught for three years in the Junior College. In 1935, he commenced teaching at the high school in the neighboring community of Santa Paula where he remained until 1942 when he accepted the position of principal of the evening high school in Hanford. It was during the four years that he held this position that he became a Rotarian and president of the Hanford Rotary Club.

In 1946, Clyde left Hanford and accepted an administrative position with Tulare High School where he remained for two years before moving to southern California to take a teaching job in the Fullerton High School District. He did not continue his membership in Rotary after leaving Hanford. He thereafter held a variety of positions in the field of secondary education until his retirement in 1957. He passed away in April 1960 in San Jose, California.
