What do you call a male cow sleeping in a field? A bulldozer.

Coming off a holiday weekend dedicated to giving thanks, I want to share my appreciation for every member of our club. It's an honor and a privilege to serve alongside you all! I am extra grateful for Dave Baker, who supplied this week's side-splitting humor! That said, I hope everyone enjoyed a wonderful Thanksgiving and that you are feeling festive as we step into everything December has to offer. I look forward to seeing all the usual suspects this Thursday. And if you haven't joined us for fellowship lately, the holiday season is the perfect time to spend time with your Rotary family.

THIS WEEK - December 4, 2025

Program: This week we are honored to welcome Jessica Huffman, wife of our fellow Rotarian Tony Huffman and the Assistant Vice President of System Nursing Services for WVU Medicine. Jessica brings both professional expertise and deep personal experience to our program as a cancer survivor and a dedicated advocate for those navigating their own cancer journeys. She recently launched The Jessica Huffman Women's Cancer Fund to support local women with essential care needs that fall outside traditional insurance coverage. Her story and her mission reflect strength, compassion, and a commitment to lifting others during some of the hardest moments of their lives. We look forward to hearing from Jessica and learning more about the impact she is making in our community.

PRESENTATION: At our last meeting, we welcomed Washington County Recorder Teresa Judson for an informative update on the work of the Recorder's office and its importance to property owners across the county. Teresa shared how her background in county government prepared her for this role and spoke about her commitment to public service, accessibility, and transparency. She outlined how her office records and preserves deeds, mortgages, and other vital documents, and she touched on current modernization efforts that improve public access and safeguard property records. Teresa also noted the challenges of balancing transparency with data security and keeping up with evolving technology. Our members asked several good questions about online access and historical records, and she encouraged anyone with concerns to reach out to her office. We appreciated her taking the time to speak with us, and for the steady leadership she brings to this important county function.
