PROGRAM

President Barb Quackenbush introduced Superintendent Doug Ute from Newark City Schools to discuss poverty in the school district. Doug introduced his leadership team: Julio Valladares, Warren Weber (school board member), Gemma Hoskins Zimmerman, Mark Shivley, Seth Roy, Maura Horgan, Amy Norman, and Mindy Vaughn.

Poverty is the extent to which an individual does without resources. Students at NCS experience different kinds of poverty—emotional, mental, lack of support systems, and lack of relationships and role models. Poverty is all about access, and it looks different in urban communities vs. more rural communities. Challenges students face include transportation, clothing and hygiene, parental disputes, grandparents as parents, food at home, and no preschool experience. Addiction is at the root of many of these challenges. The reason some students don't graduate is because they don't have the relationships needed to graduate.

There are approximately 6,700 students in the district. Several years ago, the graduation rate was 68% and today it's up to 89%. Doug changed the staffing model to include Social, Emotional and Academic Success (SEAS) positions like Linkage Coordinators, social workers, school counselors, and student and family advocates. They now work as a team and meet regularly. He also added new programming including ROTC, After School Adventures, and summer camps for STEM, coding, foreign languages, and band. Even though NCS is a low-income school district, they do not want for anything because of the amazing community partnerships they have. Community partnerships with local businesses, community agencies, service clubs, churches, the Boys and Girls Club, the YES Club, and the Salvation Army support initiatives like the free breakfast program, healthy kids network backpacks, and Rally in the Alley. He encourages teachers and administrators to start each day with deep breathing exercises because of the trauma that so many children experience at home. They've also been named the best free breakfast program in the state for two consecutive years. Doug concluded by thanking everyone for everything they do to support NCS. The growing graduation rate shows their support is working.

THOUGHT OF THE WEEK

Questions to ask you kids after school instead of "How was your day"?

- What made you smile today?
- Can you tell me an example of kindness you saw/showed?
- What did you do that was creative?
- Who did you sit with at lunch?
- Tell me something you know today that you didn't know yesterday.
- What was the hardest expectation to follow today?
- If you could change one thing about your day, what would it be?
- What kind of person were you today?"
