

LO Interact and the 2019 Teen Tech Team at LOACC

Report of 2/16/2019 Service Project by Ted Ricks

It wasn't the four Bellagio's pizzas that brought the five LO Interact members to the Lake Oswego Adult Community Center this rainy, Saturday afternoon. But it was the chance to teach 18 seniors with their smart phones, tablets, and PCs for a couple of hours that brought them to the LOACC. The seniors, on the other hand, enjoy the non-intimidating instruction of a teenager and the comradery of high schoolers who are the age of their grandchildren.

Every year Lake Oswego Interact members volunteer to help answer basic questions about newly purchased or underused digital devices at the adult community center. This is the fourth year that LO Interact answered the call from Ann Adrian, the center director, to offer this "open to the public" workshop from 2:00-4:00. This service project has been the most popular of all the LO Interact projects based on the demand for it over the last five years.

5 Interact members and 1 Rotarian gave up a couple of hours this Saturday to help our seniors – left to right: London Joslin, Elaine Culbert, Hope Williams, Pauline Petersen, Savannah Quast, and Ted Ricks, the LO Rotarian Club Advisor. The tasks included how to find and save apps; how to create photo, manage storage, and how to take a video and save it to an album.
