2019 Westminster Art Festival - Migration: Traveling Mercies

Presented by Westminster Presbyterian Church at Westminster Presbyterian Church, Portage MI

Apr 6 – Apr 15, 2019

Free

The seventh annual Westminster Art Festival is on the theme: “Migration: Traveling Mercies.” People, birds and other animals have always moved about the earth for a variety of reasons. Birds fly between nesting grounds and their wintering locations. Animals move about to be near food and water sources. People move to be closer to family, work, or places of safety. Changing climate across the globe has led to changes in migration patterns. Artists and poets will address a wide variety of issues related to these changing patterns: the refugee crisis brought on by violence or famine, loss of habitat, species extinction, etc. The threats posed by climate change, political unrest, and economic exploitation suggest that we could all use a few “traveling mercies. The visual arts will be juried by WMU professor Karen Bondarchuk and the poetry by KVCC instructor, local poet and activist Denise Miller. Prizes range between $800 and $50.

The Feeling Is Mutual: New Work by Maya Freelon Exhibition at the KIA

Presented by Kalamazoo Institute of Arts at Kalamazoo Institute of Arts, Kalamazoo MI

Mar 14 – May 30, 2019

Museum Hours

$5/$2 for KIA members

Known for her explosive use of color and innovative use of fragile tissue paper, Maya Freelon creates soft, sculptural assemblages that contrast the vigor of moving energy with the impermanence of life and relationships. She will create for the KIA one of her signature, site-specific tissue paper quilts, through which she pays homage to her grandmother, “who never wasted a single grain of rice,” and to the quilt as a medium for transmitting personal memory and cultural history even as it evokes comfort, warmth and healing.

Also on view will be a selection of Freelon’s tissue-ink monoprints, and the artist will create a small meditation room covered floor to ceiling with tissue paper quilts to encourage viewers to savor a present moment of seeing, listening, and learning. In discussing her fragile medium, Freelon has said, “Both delicate and resilient, the use of tissue paper poses questions surrounding preservation, ‘high’ and ‘low’ art, and the attribution of value for objects... How much pressure is needed until something is ripped? Is it destroyed? Can one find strength and power in fragility?”

Freelon’s work has been exhibited internationally in France, Italy, Jamaica, and Madagascar, and in the U.S. at the Smithsonian Museum of African American Art and the Nasher Museum of Art. She has been commissioned by Google and Cadillac.
