

Bio: Lawuratu Musah-Saaka

Lawuratu Musah-Saaka is a versatile and results-oriented development professional with over 15 years of progressive experience in project management, monitoring and evaluation (M&E), strategic planning, regulatory affairs, and public service leadership. She is currently pursuing a PhD in Organizational Management with a specialization in Political Marketing at NiBS University. Her academic credentials also include an MBA in Project Management and a BA in Psychology with Philosophy.

Throughout her career, Lawuratu has played instrumental roles in Ghana's public sector. At the Ministry of Health, she served with distinction as Monitoring and Evaluation Officer and Administrative Manager. In these roles, she coordinated donor-funded health projects, tracked infrastructure delivery across the country, monitored sector-wide performance, and supported high-level national events such as Health Summits, Holistic Assessments, and Annual Reviews. Her work significantly contributed to data-driven decision-making, stakeholder coordination, and the effective use of external aid from partners including the World Bank, JICA, and ADB.

At the National Cyber Security Centre now the Cyber Security Authority, Lawuratu was appointed as Child Online Protection Lead, where she successfully developed and coordinated the implementation of Ghana's National Child Online Protection Framework. She led stakeholder engagements with international development partners including UNICEF, the Global Alliance for Child Online Safety, and the Internet Watch Foundation. Under her leadership, Ghana launched its IWF Reporting Portal and introduced nationwide awareness and capacity-building initiatives for child safety in the digital space.

In governance, Lawuratu has served as Deputy Executive Secretary of the Postal and Courier Services Regulatory Commission (PCSRC), where she led the Commission's regulatory, operational, and strategic agenda, and ensured robust consumer protection frameworks. As a Board Member and Chair of the Audit Committee of the Ghana Publishing Company Limited, she championed governance reforms and financial accountability.

A conscientious politician with a flair for communication, Lawuratu is an active member of the National Communications Team of the New Patriotic Party (NPP). She brings to the political space a thoughtful and strategic voice, guided by the firm belief that "every problem has a solution once you are determined to solve it."

She is also the Charter President of the Rotary E-Club of Savannah, Ghana, and has held leadership positions within the Project Management Institute (PMI) Ghana Chapter. She is a proud member of the Ghana Monitoring and Evaluation Forum and a tireless advocate for inclusive development, women's leadership, and youth empowerment.

Widely respected for her principled leadership, people-centered approach, and commitment to social impact, Lawuratu continues to contribute meaningfully to national development, civic engagement, and political communication in Ghana.
