Luke's Council of Catholic Women raised $330 for "Hugs for the Homeless" by passing out chocolate "kisses" and "hugs" along with paper teddy bears to promote donations for the Hugs for the Homeless Campaign. The campaign was conducted after each Mass on Feb. 14- 15. The project – promoted by the National Council of Catholic Women – allows monies raised to stay in the Clay County community to help the homeless community.

CCW is a group of women dedicated to the Gospel values of love, hope and charity, said Connie M. Schoenung, chapter vice president, who is shown here.

Fighting polio worldwide

FLEMING ISLAND – St. Johns River State College Rotaract members Urie De-

shommes, Angel Norman, Rachel Williams, Gary Scott Jr., Selina Medal, Arleth Medal, Giselle Feliciano, Tabitha Sookdeo, Lexus Lealie and Rebekah Sookdeo recently teamed up with friends, family and local Rotary Club members at Your Pie on County Road 220 to raise $150 in support of the global effort to end polio.

The restaurant donated a percentage of the Jan. 28 event's sales to support the cause.

Sometimes, super heroes need emergency care.

When your "super hero" needs emergency care, your choice matters. There's more to consider than kid-friendly décor and toys.

In Clay County, there's only one pediatric ER that brings the expertise of Wolfson Children's Hospital close to home.

That means pediatric radiologists read all of our X-rays, CTs and MRIs — just in case a broken bone affects your child's growth plate, for example.

Peace of mind in an emergency — that's changing health care for good.

Heads up

Oakleaf High 120 lb Chris Griffin is thinking about the pretzel match about to unleash on Walton's William Pick Griffin, who finished in the weight division would lose 10-4 to P the eventual champ who defeated Clay's Taylor 6-0 for the gold medal.
