James Choi (McLean High School), an immigrant from Korea, has devoted hundreds of hours of his time to children with physical and mental disabilities. His work develops their motor skills and they have fun at the same time. James will attend Duke University where he hopes to springboard to medical school.

Rebecca Pifer (Langley High School), a junior, has volunteered at Jill’s House for four years, helping mentally disabled children to learn to relax and play. She has also a board member and active participant with Youth Inspire, which helps bring emotional support to children with cancer. She is also Co-Chair of Entertainment for Relay for Life.

Guests and Visiting Rotarians

Britt Nelson (Potomac School) is co-leader of the school’s Community Service Club. She participates in the Poder program, a big-brother/sister program with children of the Culmore Safe Youth Program.
