Rob Jackson is the former President of the McLean Citizens Association (MCA). A non-profit corporation, MCA has served since 1914 as an unofficial town council for the residents of the McLean area which has no governmental structure of its own. MCA has provided a forum in which all McLean residents can discuss ways to resolve community problems and countywide issues affecting the area.

County supervisors, state legislators, county staff, and other public officials frequently address MCA meetings on matters of interest to McLean residents. The MCA serves as the umbrella organization for homeowner, civic, and community associations in the McLean Planning District.

At the conclusion of his presentation, Jan Auerbach presented Rob with a joint award with the McLean Chamber of Commerce naming him as Citizen of the Year in gratitude for his serving five years as President of MCA.
