Program - May 13, 2014

Sam Agarwal introduced Mark Brunner, principal advisor to U.S. Senator Mark Warner (D-VA) on defense, foreign policy, and energy issues. Mr. Brunner provided an overview of recent, notable, bipartisan legislation co-sponsored by Senator Warner. The Digital Accountability and Transparency Act (DATA), signed into law by the President on May 9, calls for all federal spending to be traceable on a common website. The BRIDGE Act will help rebuild America's aging infrastructure, add jobs to the economy, and increase the country's global competitiveness. As co-chair of the Alliance to Save Energy, Senator Warner is working toward doubling U.S. energy productivity. The Senator supports the Keystone pipeline as one pathway to energy independence. He also favors an "all of the above" portfolio approach that employs solar, wind, bio-fuels, nuclear energy, and next generation battery technologies. As part of immigration reform efforts, he is focusing on provision of visas to talented STEM students to enable them to remain in the U.S. once their education and training are completed. Senator Warner is also seeking bipartisan support to prevent future sequestration and to find ways to enhance cyber-security.
