Program - August 26, 2014

Lynn Heinrichs introduced John Foust, who has served as Fairfax County Dranesville District Supervisor since 2007. He is currently running to represent Virginia's 10th Congressional district in the U.S. Congress.

Supervisor Foust provided an update on key county and McLean projects and initiatives. He reported major progress in the plans for the revitalization of McLean. Phase I to bring utilities underground at Chain Bridge Road and Old Dominion Drive has been completed. Phases II and III will bring improvements to overhead lights, sidewalks, and landscaping. Plans to develop the lot at Fleetwood and Elm St. with a 240 unit apartment building have been approved. Pocket parks, sidewalk upgrades, and improvements to the playing fields at Franklin Sherman school will also be undertaken. Plans for the redevelopment of Tysons Corner, based on rail, were passed in 2010. The Silver Line is now operating, eight new buildings are under construction, and infrastructure and other improvements are moving forward. Foust has worked to bring additional parking near the new metro stations. With the opening of Phase I of the rail system, new bus routes have been established in the area.

A major goal is to make the county and district more pedestrian and bicycle friendly. In seven years, 80 different pedestrian projects have been approved, many designed to increase access to the new metro stations. Foust referred to the Tysons Traffic Impact Study, which aims to improve the flow of traffic in and around Tysons Corner and McLean. He also noted that the Virginia Assembly passed HB 2313, a bipartisan bill authorizing revenue for transportation. Fairfax County will receive a funding package of $1.2 billion to spend on transportation, and significant pedestrian and road improvements.

In McLean there is a need for more places to congregate. Spring Hill Rec Center will gain a new gym and health center; a new amphitheater will be added to McLean

50/50 Raffle

Dale Lazar won BOTH the $8 small pot and $164 large pot.

Upcoming Events

Central Park; Salona will retain an educational and historic focus. New youth fields may be added to Langley Fork Park. The McLean Government Center will be completed in February, enabling the Supervisor's Office to return to the facility. There are plans to build a new, expanded Lewinsville Senior Center complex through a public-private partnership. Plans for the McLean Main Street project extending from the Staybridge Inn to the Palladium cannot be implemented until the owners can agree on how best to move forward.

Happy Talk - August 26, 2014

Dominic Alexander had a great time in New Orleans, enjoying beignets, jazz, and the ambience.

Jan Auerbach is happy to have Carolyn Stephens as a guest. She also enjoyed five days traveling with her daughter and her daughter's boyfriend.

Dana Sippel is happy for his daughter as she departs for a nine month stay in Melbourne, Australia.

Doug Megill is happy that his daughter is now at Coastal Carolina. She is already planning a visit home over the Columbus Day weekend.

Richard Golden stands in danger of being fined by the Sergeant at Arms if he brings in any more one dollar coins.

Lynn Heinrichs was mandatorily happy.

Frank and Linda Peterson are happy to announce they have another grandson, named Gabriel, a name that can be pronounced in both English and Portuguese.

Tom Mangan is happy that his granddaughter has decided to enroll at Catholic University with a good scholarship.

Bob Hahne is pleased to welcome John Foust and appreciates his support for and attendance at every Stop Hunger Now event held in McLean.
