Some fun facts about the six day climb

- We go up the Rongai Route from the northeast side over 4 days, then down the Marangu Route on the southeast side for two days. Easier, & the best views!
- Uhuru Peak at the very top is 19,341 feet, with a 12,942 foot total ascent over 4 days. Gilman's Point at 18,638 feet is the first peak that counts as summiting for a certificate.
- It's a slow hike, not a 'technical' climb: no ropes, rappelling, etc. And, porters carry your gear, tents, food, etc., and cook all your food.
- Temps: Up to 100 degrees F at the bottom to below 0 at the top. You experience it all in 6 days.
- Summit is at dawn of the 5th day after climbing through the night.
- You will climb with Macon Dunnagan from Charlotte-South Rotary, who has summited Kilimanjaro 42 times. Professional Zara Tours guides lead the climb.
