Guest Speaker - The Hurricane Levee Band

The Hurricane Levee Band was formed in 2003 by accident after a one-time gig turned into a years-long pastime.

Wayne Callais plays the guitar and vocals and is a retired plumber. Wayne was inducted into the Westbank Musicians Hall of Fame in 2012. Windell Curole plays the guitar and vocals. He is the manager of The South Lafourche Levee District and is a Rotarian. Mike Collins plays guitar and vocals and is a retired educator with the Lafourche School System. Mike is also a Rotarian and a Past District Governor.

The group slapped that moniker on their act on a bit of a whim, inspired by Curole's decades-long work as general manager for the South Lafourche Levee District, and the name stuck. But band members say their performances do act as a laid-back musical buffer from forces threatening to erode a particular brand of Cajun culture.

The Hurricane Levee Band works to preserve the music of a generation influenced by an odd mix of sounds: the British Invasion, New Orleans blues and soul, mainstream American rock and Cajun French tradition along southern Bayou Lafourche.
