Presentation Title: "Competing Through Service"

As leaders we have the honor and the responsibility of serving our communities. But are the services we provide really meeting their needs? Before we can really serve them, we must understand their needs and expectations, set the right standards, share aligned incentives and arm people for success. An expert on customer relations, Dr. Bendapudi will share steps universities and other community leaders can take to make sure they're having the greatest impact on their communities.

presentation by giving some highlights and history about UofL Hospital. He discussed the evolving belief that treatment for injuries from gun violence now has to reach outside the four walls of the ER and beyond the hospital. UofL is partnering with a variety of resources to ensure that this happens.

Keith began his presentation by discussing the anatomy of a gun shot wound and how the ER operates when a patient is received. He then presented statistics to answer the question, "How common is this issue?" Keith gave a state by state comparison, trends in Kentucky as well as specifics to UofL Hospital. Keith then moved to reviewing contributors to gun violence and the modifiable factors to combat it. Substance abuse and mental health were among the causes. Keith ended his presentation by talking about Violent Injury Prevention and the role UofL Hospital and community resources play in reducing this serious issue.

Meeting minutes will be made available as soon as possible.

Rotary Reading

Just One Example of What Your Rotary Foundation Contributions Can Do!

U of L Graduate begins study at University of Edinburgh

May 2018 graduate Nicole Robertson begins her Rotary Global Scholarship study this fall in Scotland. She is pursuing a Master of Public Health. Nicole's academic focus is related to the study of chronic respiratory diseases. In addition to her course work, she will engage in qualitative research efforts that will enable her to become a change agent in public health. Recently, Nicole conducted research work in Uganda on chronic respiratory diseases. Her persistence in conducting research on chronic health diseases in sub-Saharan Africa is a commitment to be applauded by Rotarians worldwide.

The Rotary Club of Louisville nominated Nicole for this honor. The $45,000 scholarship is made possible by our contributions to The Rotary Foundation of Rotary International. $22,500 of this comes from the District Designated Funds and $22,500 of it comes from the Rotary Foundation's World Fund. While in Scotland she will be looked after by the Rotary Club of Linlithgow Grange. When you give to The Rotary Foundation of Rotary International you are part of this.
