Today's Speaker

John Wilson King County Assessor

King County Assessor John Wilson was reelected in 2019 to his second term. He has earned the praise of people both inside and outside King County as one of the most innovative, forward-thinking leaders in local government. Working with community organizations, Wilson urged Olympia to pass the most significant senior property tax relief in decades. As a result, thousands of new applicants will be able to stay in their homes. Housing and homelessness are crucial issues, and Wilson has become a regional leader in identifying surplus public property and vacant private property that can be used for innovative short and long-term housing solutions.

Under Wilson's leadership, the Assessor's office developed a groundbreaking Taxpayer Transparency Tool, allowing you to see how upcoming ballot measures will impact your property taxes – whether you're a homeowner or renter.

The Assessor's office has spearheaded innovations that dramatically increased the accuracy of in-field data and improved productivity – without increasing costs. Wilson also helped pass state and county legislation making it easier to correct errors and reimburse taxpayers for tax overpayments.

Wilson has four grown children, two sons, and two daughters. For relaxation, Wilson loves to read, cook on weekends, listen to jazz, hike, and travel.
