Visitors:

David Marshak, Retired Professor of Seattle University and Davin Bowerman our new member in waiting, from ReProp

Announcements:

Mike Newman thanked all volunteers for Back Packs for Kids and reminded us of the need for more. John Vandermolen reminded us of our Best of the Wurst fundraiser on March 25th; Many thanks to Haider Ajina and Cindy Denbo for their awesome leadership;

He also called for volunteers to help Meghann Broadstock with our Dictionary Project.

Cindy Denbo talked about the fun time had by all last Thursday at the Elks Lodge pretending to grill brats for the camera. Look for our stellar crew of faux grillers this Monday, March 15th, on Lost Coast Outpost Monday with Michaela.

Our newest FUN feature is ♦what you don♦t know about me♦; John Vandermolen led the way by revealing he was born in the Netherlands and wore wooden shoes as a child; he proudly showed us the shoes♦so Cute!

Recognitions:

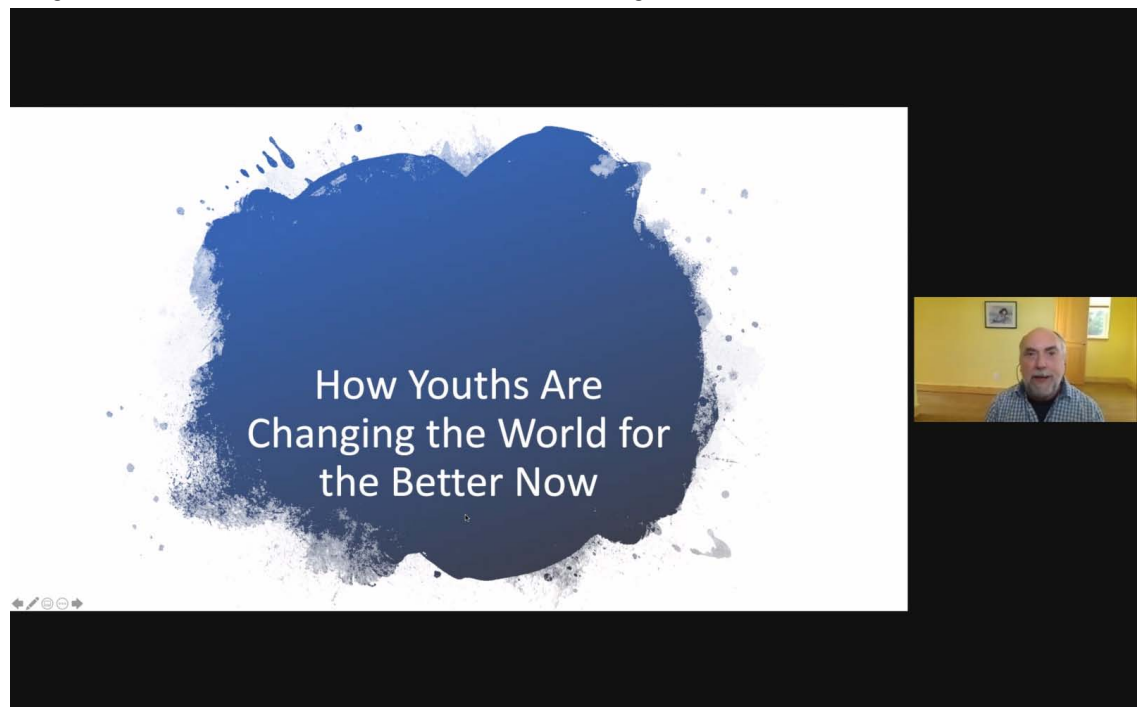

Ron Harris joined us from Maui and was fined for enjoying steak and lobster with his wife, Deborah, to celebrate their anniversary.

Program:

David Marshak was introduced by Nancy Kay. David Marshak, a retired Professor from Seattle University and now living in Arcata, gave a talk entitled: ♦How Youth are Changing the World for the Better Now♦ We learned that teens living in 1890 were considered adults due to the fact that their life span was about 50 years of age; In 1904 S. Stanley Hall coined the word adolescent and that by the 1970s youth had their own media which changed the traditional roles for that age group. David highlighted youth who made worldwide change in the environment, education, social and technological arenas.

As always, John Vandermolen wished us all a happy and safe weekend.
