Dr. Eduardo Ochoa Argentina – Travel, Government & Economy (Soccer Forecast?)

Eduardo M. Ochoa grew up in Buenos Aires, Argentina, before moving to Portland, Ore., with his family, where he finished high school. He earned a B.A. in physics with a minor in philosophy from Reed College and an M.S. from Columbia University in nuclear science and engineering. He worked for three years as an engineer in New York, then returned to graduate school and received a Ph.D. in economics from the New School for Social Research. Dr. Ochoa taught at Fresno State University and at California State University, Los Angeles, where he became a full professor and Chair of the Economics and Statistics Department. In 1997, Dr. Ochoa was named as the Dean of Cal Poly Pomona's College of Business Administration, where he served for six years. He then became Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs at Sonoma State University.

In February 2010, Dr. Ochoa was named Assistant Secretary for Postsecondary Education by President Barack Obama. In that office, he served as the Secretary of Education's chief adviser on higher education issues, oversaw Federal student aid policy, and administered more than 60 programs supporting the nation's colleges and universities.

Dr. Ochoa then was named President of California State University Monterey Bay from 2012 until his retirement in 2022, helping the university fulfill its core academic mission, grow, and develop as a regional asset. He served on the Board of Directors of the Monterey Bay Economic Partnership, an organization dedicated to advance sustainable growth and diversification of the region's economic base. He currently serves on the boards of the Carmel Bach Festival, the World Affairs Council of Monterey Bay, the American Association of Colleges and Universities, the National Council for State Authorization Reciprocity Agreements, and is a Trustee of Reed College.

Dr. Ochoa's wife Holly is a historian, writer and editor. The Ochoa's have two adult sons, Michael and Eric.
