Bill Briggs That Pirate, Bouchard

William Briggs is former professor and director in the School of Journalism and Mass Communications at San Jose State University, and Emeritus Dean of the College of Communications at California State University Fullerton.

After a four-decade career in journalism, public relations and academia, Dr. Briggs, in retirement, returned to his first love of history, focusing on less-well known stories from California's colorful history. He is the author of BADASS LAWMAN, about the 19th century sheriff who relentlessly tracked – and eventually hung – the notorious bandido Tiburcio Vasquez, and THAT PIRATE, BOUCHARD, about the only pirate raid in California history. A third volume of his historical trilogy, THE STAR, THE SAINT AND THE CITY, about the founding of San Francisco as a religious colony and its first newspaper which heralded the gold rush, will be published this fall.

“There are so many fascinating stories from our rich local history that we never learned in school,” says Dr. Briggs. “The recent pandemic gave me the time and motivation to research and write about some of them. Many people, even in Monterey, are unfamiliar with Hipolito Bouchard’s 1818 sacking of Monterey, as well as Santa Barbara and San Juan Capistrano while he was fighting for Argentine independence from Spain.”

Dr. Briggs earned a degree in history from Stanford University. He holds a master's degree in communication from San Jose State University and received his doctorate in education from University of San Francisco. He received the Bronze Star medal for military service in Vietnam. A native Californian, he is past president of the Morgan Hill Historical Society and a 50-year resident of Santa Clara County.
