mothers2mothers Supports African Women

President Dave Welcomes Robin Allinson Smalley mothers2mothers Co-founder and Chief Connector

Rotary's guest Thursday was Robin Allinson Smalley. She is the Co-Founder and Chief Connector to mothers2mothers. She explained mothers2mothers employs women living with HIV as Community Health Workers called Mentor Mothers. mothers2mothers Mentor Mothers work both at health facilities and door-to-door to improve the health of communities across ten African nations. They deliver life changing services to women, children, adolescents, and entire families. This model improves health of communities, while delivering meaningful employment for women living with HIV.

The magic of the model is that it is peer based. Services are delivered by people from the same community as those they serve and are rooted in shared realities and experiences. Women, children, and adolescents are supported with vital medical services and education.

The services and support mothers2mothers frontline health heroes provide are more critical than ever to ensure an equitable, healthy, and bright future for adolescent girls, women, and children – especially in the face of two pandemics, HIV and COVID-19.
