Listening Week 2

Week Two - LISTENING

I remind myself every morning: Nothing I say this day will teach me anything. So if I'm going to learn, I must do it by listening." Larry King
Listening to others, and listening well, is important for your personal development because it allows you to expand your horizon. As Larry King points out in the quote above, we don't learn things from what we have to say we learn from what others have to say. We each have a world of our own, filled with our thoughts, ideas, opinions, values, experiences and perspectives. Collectively, these make up our horizon. One of the best ways to expand that horizon is to expose ourselves to other thoughts, ideas, opinions, values, experiences and perspectives. We do this by opening our ears and minds to them. We do this by listening.

Speaker: Rob Houston City Manager Orange

Rob has been working in government his whole career. He grew up in Canada and in 2005 he and his wife decided to move to Southern California to get away from the Canadian winters. He has held city management jobs in Newport Beach, Fountain Valley and since March, Orange. Some of the issues he discussed today were: The Sully Miller property where there is no easy answer, and the future of the Orange Mall aka The Village. He has learned during his career to listen to people on both sides of an issue and try to come up with compromise solutions. His daughter Ashley is currently following in her dad's footsteps, doing an internship with our city manager Steve Franks.
