America250: Honoring the Past, Envisioning the Future

Nicole Ferraiolo, Director of Public Engagement, Office of Presidential Libraries, National Archives and Records Administration (NARA)

Abigail Krolik, Educational Resources Specialist, Library of Congress

As the United States approaches its 250th anniversary in 2026, we're honored to welcome two national leaders helping to shape this historic milestone. This special program will explore how America is preparing to reflect on its founding, celebrate its progress, and engage citizens in envisioning the future.

Nicole Ferraiolo, Director of Public Engagement at the Office of Presidential Libraries (National Archives), will share how presidential libraries are developing exhibits, public programs, and digital resources to connect communities with the legacy of American leadership. She'll be joined by Abby Krolik, Educational Resources Specialist at the Library of Congress, who will highlight innovative tools and outreach efforts designed to bring history to life for students, educators, and lifelong learners. Together, they'll offer an inside look at the federal vision for America250—not just as a celebration, but as a national dialogue about who we've been, who we are, and who we aspire to be.

Abby Krolik is an Educational Resources Specialist at the Library of Congress. She has over ten years of experience working in both museum and school settings and has dedicated her career to supporting educators of all kinds use museum, library, or archival objects and resources to deepen the learning experience. In her current role, she develops and facilitates high-quality professional learning programming that connects educators around the country with the vast resources at the Library of Congress, and particularly at www.loc.gov.

Nicole Kang Ferraiolo is the Director of Public Engagement at the Office of Presidential Libraries within the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). In this role, she leads initiatives that connect diverse public audiences with the history, legacy, and civic mission of the Presidential Libraries. Nicole brings a background in public humanities, community engagement, and cultural programming, with a deep commitment to inclusive storytelling and democratic access to history. Her work focuses on fostering national conversations, innovative programming, and partnerships that amplify the relevance of Presidential Libraries in American life today.

Book: Atomic Habits, James Clear

Atomic Habits by James Clear emphasizes the transformative power of small, consistent changes. Clear argues that success doesn't come from massive overhauls but from tiny habits that compound over time. He introduces a four-step model—cue, craving, response, and reward—and outlines four laws of behavior change to build good habits: make them obvious, attractive, easy, and satisfying. The book stresses identity-based habits, encouraging readers to focus not just on outcomes but on becoming the kind of person who embodies the behaviors they want. Ultimately, it's a guide to mastering the process of lasting self-improvement through incremental daily actions.
