Our Presenter Tomorrow

Pam Carlisle is the Outreach Historian at the Bossier Parish Libraries History Center. She grew up in New Hampshire and received a B.A. from Smith College in Massachusetts. While in college, she interned at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History and discovered how much she enjoys preserving history and presenting it to the public.

After college, she worked with Alaska Native entities in Alaska as a VISTA volunteer, then as a National Park Service Museum Technician and Archaeologist trainee. That work eventually led her to Arizona State University to earn her Graduate degree in history and a certificate in public history.

Pam moved to Louisiana in 2005 to be the local history and public outreach specialist at the Bossier Parish Libraries History Center. She enjoys researching, writing about, and presenting programs to all ages, especially on less-explored aspects of Bossier Parish history, such as the African-American schools of Bossier Parish and their teachers. She writes a weekly local history column for the Bossier Press Tribune.

Her presentation tomorrow will be : A Celebration of Bossier Sports: From Duck Calls to Free Throws, Shuffleboard to Touchdowns (Part I) . There were just so many sports figures from Bossier she couldn't fit them all in just one presentation.

She married Rick Carlisle, originally from Coushatta, in 2007 and they have a daughter, Natalie.

Last meeting

John Albritton brought his wife of 60+ years, Sharon Albritton, to Rotary last week.

We listened to the program as Joe Littlejohn spoke about AmTrak service coming to our area. Joe has been a fan of all things trains for many years.

Jason Whittlesy pulled a face card from the deck last week and won $10 in the raffle. Thanks for supporting this CCTC scholarship project, Jason!

Ashlie Gamett was back again visiting with Michele Ball.
