On Tuesday October 11th , Ranger Outdoors of Charleston, Tennessee joined us to talk all things small business and outdoors. The company was founded in 2017 and is based on the promise of being a pioneer in the industry, making quality products at affordable prices an expectation, not a dream.

The company has been quickly growing since its inception, acquiring a number of smaller businesses to fall under the Ranger umbrella. They currently employ roughly 20 employees from the local community and anticipate to continue this growth in time. The economic shift caused by Covid was actually a positive change for Ranger as the demand for goods that got you up and out of the house rose.

With the community of outdoor enthusiasts growing, so is the need for specific types of gear. For example, women represent a large proportion of today's anglers but equipment specified for their size and measurements has only recently emerged. Ranger works to encompass these often forgotten margins of outdoor customers, and bring value to their leisure and pass-time.
