Dr. Hermilo Jasso joined Lee's business faculty in 1987 after a successful stint in the business world. Prior to his arrival at Lee, Jasso worked as a stockbroker for Merrill Lynch and a financial analyst for Metropolitan Life. He has been listed in multiple business journals, including Who's Who Among American Entrepreneurs and Who's Who Among Hispanic Americans. Jasso teaches courses such as Macroeconomics, Microeconomics, and Investments. He was the first recipient of Lee's Janet Rahamut Faculty Award and has been a guest lecturer at universities around the world.

Over the course of the next hour, we were able to get a better understanding of the economy and how our perception of it is very important to its success. Dr. Jasso mixes humor with an amazing knowledge of the subject matter and left the room feeling more informed about the current recession fears and future outlooks.

All in all it was clear to see that the strength of the American economic machine will continue for years to come as number one!

Dr. Jasso is responsible for helping place thousands of business students into the workforce, but his influence goes so far beyond that.

If Cleveland Rotary Club members have trouble making meetings due to their work responsibilities, the Rotary members go to them. Here, David Chaffin, our Rotary Foundation Chair, awards Sharonda Thompson her initial Paul Harris Fellow Award at her workplace. Sharonda said she's having to work extra hours because it's difficult to find employees right now. "The result is those who do choose to work have to take up the slack by working twice as hard," she said.
