Visit to Scotland With Denise de Prouw By Ailish Nic Phaidin

Our esteemed Immediate Past President, Denise de Prouw, all the way from the beautiful Netherlands, was our speaker.

Denise spent a leisurely vacation in Scotland recently for twenty-seven days – she even traveled in her own car all the way from The Netherlands through the highlands and islands of Scotland and back home again. It was certainly an exciting journey that showed the natural beauty, culture, music and social mores of the Scottish land and people.

She began her presentation with a slide of the Three Sisters in Glencoe – so named for the three distinctive ridges on the Bidean Nam Bian Mountain, the Three Sisters are the most photographed landmark in Glencoe. Rising up from lush, green valleys, the peaks are road-facing and best seen on foot, where you can take in the full majesty of the region's much beloved natural landmark. Her photograph was spectacular – comparable to many professional photographs online. She began the trip with a friend for the first six days and then she drove on through the Highlands of Scotland to many beautiful places, people meetings, great food and slumber in many really good hotels. Denise emphasized the friendly nature of the Scottish people she met everywhere she went and she was impressed with the warmth of their welcome and helpfulness. She wanted to drive the North Coast 500 but found that she had to change her plans quickly as everywhere was fully booked. Being nimble, Denise's plans changed to a different, less trodden, route through the Highlands, which led her to Edinburgh. She outlined many castles, many of which have been used for filming famous films. Denise found that some traffic cameras where not in use and were marked as such – why would this happen, she wondered? Maybe a local law? Edinburgh is a beautiful city and Denise took on the role of tour guide for her friend since she had previously visited the city. Arthur's Seat (an extinct volcano) was a highlight of the Edinburgh trip. Denise had some amazing photos of the castle and the cathedral, especially the famous glass windows. They took a murder mystery tour of Edinburgh – including some gruesome stories. The National Museum of Scotland is definitely a place to visit. When visiting some of the more westerly islands, Denise made us aware that the seagulls can terrorize people. After being forewarned by the locals, she did see a number of people with bird poop. She also visited Linlithgow Palace, West Lothian where on 8 December 1542, Mary became Queen of Scots when she was six days old. Her claims to the throne of England were almost as strong as her claims to the Scottish throne. Contemporary drawings on the castle give a good view of how people lived in the 1500's. She also visited the Wallace Tower, built in honor of William Wallace. His large sword is on display there. The National Wallace Monument is one of Scotland's most distinctive landmarks.

The stunning 220ft tower honours the famous Scottish warrior – Sir William Wallace. It took eight years to build, and was funded entirely by contributions from the public totaling more than £15,000. She visited a lot of Outlander locations. The Devil's Pulpit was very interesting with a large staircase which is dangerous to climb as it is very slippery. She visited the site of the Battle of Culloden, site of bloody last battle of Jacobite Rising, with visitor centre and interactive exhibition. There was amazing wildlife everywhere, including Scottish coo's (🐔). Denise visited many other places with magnificent castles with mighty backdrops and fabulous land mountain scapes that truly take your breath away.

Thank you so much Denise. I think we were all "driven through" Scotland on the wings of her visit.
