A note...

From Eldon...

Although I am not attending Rotary meetings in Sanibel, my thoughts are always about Rotary. This is a Rotary sign in Thailand which shows that Rotary is worldwide. Augusta and I are enjoying our world cruise but look forward to our return. Eldon

Friday's Speaker

This coming week we will hear from Kealy McNeal – SCCF Coastal Watch Director & Shane Antalick – SCCF Coastal Watch Photographer. They will be discussing the impact of Hurricane Ian on the island as it relates to the water.

Kealy McNeal
Coastal Watch Director

Kealy grew up in Iowa and spent her childhood vacationing in Florida, where she fell in love with the ocean. As a young girl, her career aspirations ranged from dolphin trainer to marine biologist. Eventually, Kealy attended the University of Tampa, where she studied environmental and marine science. After her studies, she worked for The Audubon Society, monitoring and protecting nesting shorebirds on beaches in Florida and Massachusetts. Environmental education is very important to Kealy, and she is thrilled to share her ocean knowledge and enthusiasm with others at Sanibel Sea School. Kealy also leads paddles and community events for Ocean Tribe Paddlers, an affiliated organization for those who share her love of paddling. Kealy took the reins as Conservation Initiative Coordinator in October 2020 and serves as the liaison between SCCF and the Coastal Watch Advisory Committee to plan and execute conservation initiatives on Sanibel and Captiva. Kealy brings her passion for our coastlines, conservation, and public outreach to this position and is excited to work with the community on a deeper level.
