What You Missed ...

By Sara Hickey on Sunday, March 21, 2021

Last week, our guest was April Barczewski, an educator for the 4-H Program through the University of Maryland Extension. The extension educators develop and implement research-based, non-formal education programs for the general public. The 4-H programs are designed to support their goals of healthy living, civic engagement, and STEM and agriculture. They teach life skills to children 5-18 through about 80 different projects which encompass a variety of areas, not just agriculture and animal sciences. To watch the entire interesting program, click here. You can also find out more information about programs and volunteering by emailing April directly at adhall@umd.edu
