CTE program is meeting the needs of students, employers

Colleen Strickland and Josh Brooks presented the program at the Rotary Club of Franklin Daybreak meeting on Tuesday, March 25.

The CTE program in Macon County is designed to provide students with the skills and knowledge they need to succeed in today's job market. The program offers a wide range of courses, including business, agriculture, welding, computer science, construction, early childhood and food and nutrition.

In addition to the hands-on experience, the CTE program also provides students with the opportunity to earn college credits and certifications that are recognized by employers. This not only helps students save money on their future education, but it also provides them with a competitive edge in the job market.
