Last Week's Program

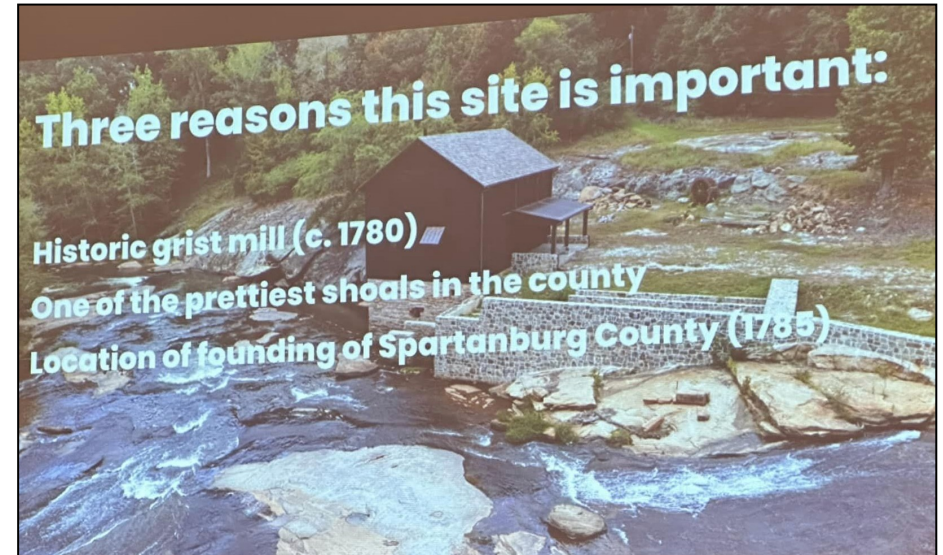

Julian Hankinson told us about the restoration of the Anderson Mill. He is founder of the Tyger River Foundation, and he told the story of he and his wife taking up the cause of saving this piece of our history. The mission of the Tyger River Foundation is focused on history, natural resources, and an active outdoor experience. This was the first public access to the Tyger River in Spartanburg County. Anderson Mill was completely disassembled and built back new, reusing what they could. It is the oldest standing mill in SC. Once open to the public, it will provide lessons about what life was like in the 1700's and access so folks can enjoy the river.
