Last Week's Program

Reverend Scott Neely told the Club about congregations working together to help 20% of children who are in poverty in Spartanburg. The approach is to work on 2 generations, the children and the parents. Religious groups have a 'negative friending' bias (that's a good thing.) Rev. Neely says, "Let folks in your congregation. It will help them move forward. Help get our kids out of poverty, once and for all."

Who Am I?

1. When I was a child, I made money in the summer with a lemonade stand. Also created talent shows with other children in my neighborhood and charged admission to the parents. I donated some of the money I raised to Muscular Dystrophy association.
2. I enjoy the game show Family Feud, and would love to be on the show with some family members...if they would be willing.
3. I'm a parrot head and was fortunate enough to meet Jimmy Buffet one year after a concert.
