Last Week's Program

Last week Kathy Dunleavy told the Club about the history of Meeting Street Academy, which was begun in Charleston in 2008. In 2012 it was brought to Spartanburg by the Johnsons. In 2015 it became a public/private school and serves 3 years old to 5th grade. 91% of their attendees are below the poverty level and 39% of parents have not graduated high school. They track their alumni and have found that they continually graduate with a 3.0 GPA or higher. Last October they were chosen as a Blue Ribbon School by the US Dept of Education. Want to help? Become a mentor. It only takes 30 minutes a week and all that is required is that you talk with a child during their lunch break.
