First Club Micro Project Completed

By Diane Wood Junis on Sunday, February 5, 2023

At our Feb 2nd meeting we completed our first "micro-project," serving during our regular lunch meeting. We supported the Richland Soil and Water Conservation District's (RSWCD) Seed Sanctuary Program and packed a total of 512 seed packets.

The RSWCD program provides free vegetable, herb and wildflowers seeds to County residents and the program now has a second location in the hallway outside of the Richland Soil and Water Conservation District office at the Richland County Administration Building, at 2020 Hampton Street, Room 3063A. The Seed Sanctuary will be accessible during business hours.

"The goals of RSWCD's Seed Sanctuary are to promote food security and pollinator conservation through home gardening," said Diana Llaca-Curiel, RSWCD community outreach intern. "It's a great program for both beginners and experienced home gardeners. I'm excited for our community to have easier and more consistent access to our seeds."
Richland County residents can still get seeds at the program's original permanent location, the Richland Library Eastover, at 608 Main Street.

The Richland Soil and Water Conservation District program promotes the use and care of natural resources for long-term sustainability.
